

OFFICINA DIESEL

To Whom it concerns

As a Sole Administrator and Human Resources Manager at OFFICINA DIESEL S.R.L. in Genoa Italy (named OFFICINA from now), I had the great pleasure of guiding Mr. FILIPPO LEONARDI (named Mr. LEONARDI from now) through a 4-week internship at OFFICINA headquarters, from July 1st to July 26th July 2024.

In the origin it was going to be a 2-week internship, subsequently extended to 4 weeks, after the unexpected, but most welcomed, Mr. LEONARDI kind and appreciated request.

At OFFICINA I welcome many highly skilled and bright candidates of different ages, but I must admit Mr. LEONARDI is a unique one, not only for his request to extend the internship time and learn more about the firm and its daily duties even at a young age.

Mr. LEONARDI spent the first 2 weeks was supported by the administrative department to review all the procedures and rules that regulate the workshop activity, in particular for the necessary professional training courses and the safety procedures that must be followed during both work and in the workshop and on board ships. At the same time he examined the programs and software used by the company to maintain relationships with customers and suppliers and for the general functioning of a typical ship repair company.

I was very much impressed by Mr. LEONARDI curiosity, determination, and ability to learn a completely new skill in a very short time. As a high school student with no experience in this field and little guidance from Department senior people reasonably busy completing company tasks, he came up with brilliant results.

Thanks to his exquisite personal attitude Mr. LEONARDI gained a lot of merit within the Administration Department. Being respectful of everybody while working on tight deadlines, he was able to figure out things on his own and ask for help when needed. I particularly enjoyed the extent to which every day, during the lunch break, Mr. LEONARDI spent most of his time along with his tutor asking for other informations about works over the years.

In the following 2 weeks Mr. LEONARDI was transferred and supported by a workshop manager, where he was able to view all the processes that are carried out on naval engines and the use of machine tools and equipment necessary for the processing of the parts with repair and/or or replacement with specific spare parts.

OFFICINA DIESEL

He also consulted engine supplier manuals and examined the data and knowledge necessary to operate correctly on a naval engine.

During this period he also examined the functioning of the spare parts warehouse and its management.

He was able to participate in the dismantling and maintenance of a cylinder head of a Sulzer ZA40S engine on a passenger ferry of a well-known company.

Mr. LEONARDI amazingly exceeded my expectations, despite the different tasks and environment he had to deal with. Thanks to his flexibility, responsibility, eagerness to try new things and tenacity he became an effective and popular Administration Department member for his smile and for the relationship he installed with the most experienced of workers.

He met his tasks on time and with meticulous care, while always securing full support to other team members and providing efficient solutions upon need.

Mr LEONARDI is naturally open-minded like no one else at his age and level of experience.

Both at the Administration and Workshop department, Mr. LEONARDI brought his notable contribution as a hard worker, as well as a source of humour for his mates, always finding to right time to contribute to conversations, whether it was an effective issue solution or a funny story.

Student Name could be an excellent asset at Firm, as well as at any other community.

He drives himself with a peculiar approach to life and he is naturally willing to succeed.
